Leveling Up: How to Stand Out in Your Organization

10:10 AM-10:50 AM

Despite years of conversations and programs by industry stakeholders to diversify the talent pool standing out in an inherently biased environment is a challenge women still face. How have women in leadership roles risen above this and succeeded? What real lessons can we learn from savvy leaders on successfully adjusting their business priorities, reinvesting budgets to drive growth, and taking a smart path to business transformation during times of great disruption.

NYU Tandon SoE Women in STEM (and CYBER)

Supporting Women in STEM
The study highlighted five common experiences that kept popping up over and over again:
Having an early cheerleader or mentor
Developing a passion for the underlying work
Having a job where you make meaningful contributions to society
Access to women-centric support communities
“Meaningful” action or support from male colleagues
All were positively associated with making women feel more welcome in the workspace and more likely to remain in or pursue a career in STEM.

PANEL

11:35 AM-12:20 PM

The Role of Mentoring & Sponsorship in Advancing Women Leaders

How do we come together, as a group of professionals, to create and foster an inclusive business world where all women have a role to play? We know that a major part of this is attracting and retaining talent at every level but how exactly do we do that and where can we use technology to help? Our panelists will discuss how their companies are creating more inclusive environments, the use AI tools to help uncover hidden biases, what flexibility looks like for all team members and how they are advancing women earlier and signing them up for long term success.

The Unspoken Narrative: Embracing 'Otherhood'

The landscape of modern womanhood is changing, with more people living without children, whether by choice or circumstance. This talk opens up the conversation about 'otherhood' and its wide-ranging implications.

We'll explore how this shift is influencing various aspects of life, including the workplace, and how it challenges traditional norms. By discussing this openly, we aim to foster a more inclusive and empathetic understanding of the diverse experiences of women.

Join this session for a thoughtful discussion on 'otherhood,' its impact on our lives, and the importance of creating a space where every person's journey is respected and celebrated.

VISION VOICES

Your Worth Isn't What You Produce

3:30 PM-3:45 PM

Your worth isn't derived from what you do or achieve. It's an innate, within quality, that only you can find. In this talk, Jessica shares her tumultuous journey from 'always-doing' high achieving CMO to finding her soul purpose. By 40 years old she was burnout, unhappy and had hit a bottom through a corporate career that no longer served her. Instead of spending another year trudging through, she walked away from it all. Learn how she found meaning and purpose outside of the corporate grind. And 3 core principles for how you can tame your need to always be doing to feel good about yourself. Rather, finding your worth through honoring the soul within.

The Power of the Pivot: Ensuring Success in an Uncertain World

3:50 PM-4:05 PM

The world has become a whirlwind of change - rapid technological disruptions, evolving workplace dynamics and volatile markets. In this unpredictable landscape, success hinges not just on ambition and skill, but on the ability to adapt and pivot. This keynote will be a compelling blend of the speaker’s own experiences, industry insights, and actionable strategies. It's a must-attend for anyone, especially senior leaders looking to navigate change, experience breakthroughs and thrive in the most challenging professional environment of our time."

Leadership Evolution: Innovating Through Times of Change

4:10 PM-4:50 PM

The role of driving innovation during times of change is important for all leaders to master. You must be proactive in anticipating and responding to change, rather than simply reacting to it. We'll discuss how success team leaders have created a culture of innovation, how to develop and implement innovative ideas, and how to effectively communicate change to stakeholders.
